MOK LEUKU, a farm labourer, was brought before Mr Wodehouse in the Police Court to-day charged with stealing a suit of Fire Brigade uniform. The suit was in the possession of one of the Chinese members of the brigade, and he had hung them out on a bamboo pole to dry. A CORRESPONDENT writes to us:- 'The police have been causing an intolerable nuisance those of our Customers who prefer to have by chasing ricksha coolies about midnight in the neighbourhood of Queen's Road West, near the Man On Insurance Coy.'s premises. Just imagine the noise caused by from 6 to 10 coolies driving their rickshas simultaneously with full speed at dead of night in order to escape from being beaten. On two occasions a Chinese lukong was seen cruelly besting the poor coolies, who rolled on the ground howling and screaming till the whole people were aroused from their beds to see whether some one was being murdered. This lukong, whose duty begins about 1 a.m., ought to be prosecuted and dismissed and the nuisance ought not to be allowed to go on any more.

Two Chinese were charged before Mr Wodehouse to-day with causing an obstruction on Praya West, and some European evidence of a remarkably contradictory character was given in the case. Acting Police Sergeant Foord said the defendants had placed a quantity of sugar bags and other things out on the street, on the 7th instant, in such a way as to cause an obstruction. Mr Granville Sharp then went and Kennedy Town, and the place in question was not on the now extension but 600 feet east of it. There was not even sufficient room to walk past while the obstruction was there, and a ricksha was stopped by it. His Worship fined the defendants

Not long ago, in the course of some archcurious manuscript that seemed to be some centuries old. Time had eaten away a part of it, but by great effort I managed to deciplier most of the words and to connect them together in a story that evidently only wanted two or three concluding sentonces. In the hope that some of your ed and among their number there was not a more popular than the College of Kong. Hong. It was aituated in a very picturesque part of the country and possessed many natural advantages. The fame thereof being noised abroad, students of all tongues and peoples Rocked thither and gathered under its walts. This school was ruled over by seven men to whom the king gave special instructions that they should by no means incite jealousy among the scholars, but should rather the more;

nese music and took part in playing. The not only was great store set by the intellectual attainments of the scholars but every effort was made to develop their physical powers. To the more thoroughly carry out this latter object, a large playground was formed. It was the royal intention that all the scholars should make use of this ground. so that the health and strength of all might be maintained. But there existed among their number a few young men who, although they were not a whit better than the rest, thought so highly of themselves that they begrudged their fellow-students a share of the ground that was intended for all. These young men had friends in the Senate, and by this means they were enabled to so assert their pretensions that the others scarcely dared to interfere. Some of them did ride on ponies over the ground; others did hit balls. Sometimes the balls went into a little pond that lay in the centre of the ground. The favourites were greatly annoyed at this, and by the help of their friends in the Senate they secured an order to fill up the pond, notwithstanding that the cost thereof was likely to be great. But no one grambled, because the pond was not pleasant to look at and served no good purpose. Now it happened that close to the playground there lay a plantation that was of little use to anyone. And it came into the heads of the scholars that it would be better to make of this plantation an addi-y into the box and said the place in question tion to the playground, in order that greater was at the new extension of the Praya and facility might be obtained for physical exerno inconvenience was caused, as there was cisc. LIU SHING AND OTHERS V. B. SAUNDERS.

Liu Shing and others, compradores, sued Miss E. Saunders for $928, for goods supplied. Mr Wilkinson appeared for the plaintiffs and Mr Mossop for the defendant. Mr Mossop said he had given notice of a special defence, which was that the parties had made an agreement for the settlement of the account, and this agreement still stood, for which reason the plaintiffs could not ask for judgment. The arrangement was made on the 2nd of June, and it was that the defendant should pay the amount by instalments of $2.00 per month. The first instalment was to be paid on 15th June, and on that date on the top of this the fort is built. (Shanghai Mercury Correspondence. Kelung, 1st July, 1890. A short description of the fort, which Lieut. Hecht has built to the south-east of the harbour here, may be of interest to some of your readers.

About :00 feet from the beach a hill rises nearly perpendicularly some 230 feet and rear where the barracks for the garrison houses here are built in regular streets, and of good material and look clean and tidy. An artesian well is being bord here; they are down to 70 feet now. From the barracks a rather steep flight of $4 stone steps leads up to the levelled top of the hill where the batteries are.

The battery in front is 230 Year above the sea level, with a very fair range but to sea and able to fire down in the Barbour to about the Inner Buoy. It is an enclosed, comented place with bomb-proof building Mr Mossop said such were his instruct for munition. About 100 feet further back and a little to the Eastward is nother battery some 40 feet higher than the front one; it is built in the same way with bomb-proof munition chambers.
